

3Q Holdings joins in Retravisión's growth as stores go from Betta to Best

The Board of 3Q Holdings Limited (ASX: TQH) is pleased to announce that Retravisión WA has decided to invest in TQH's Complete Retail Management System (CRMS) solution as the IT platform for its recently launched "Best Buy Electrical" retail brand in WA.

The 12 WA franchisees have joined Retravisión's network after the group's parent company, Betta Stores had gone into receivership in October 2006.

Retravisión Chief Executive Paul Holt said, "CRMS was an obvious choice for our new Best Buy Electrical stores, given its proven track record in the electrical industry".

He also commented "CRMS has provided Retravisión with a complete integrated solution from point of sale and stock management to financial management and reporting through to managing inventory".

Di Daly, Head of TQH's CRMS Division said, "CRMS are excited to have the Best Buy Group join their list of customers in the electrical retail market. We have the flexibility to grow with the brand and provide the support to respond quickly to their rapidly changing market".

The addition of these stores now makes Retravisión the biggest independent electrical retailer in WA and one of the other key benefits of this solution is that they have created a platform that other independent retailers can easily join with no disruption.

TQH Executive Chairman Shaun Rosen said, "We are delighted that Retravisión have chosen CRMS for their new "Best Buy Electrical" brand and we look forward to sharing in their success as Retravisión sets its sights on expanding its network further".
